Mr. Elliot Fromstein

APPEARANCES:

For the Professional Conduct Committee: Mr. Paul Farley, Counsel

For Mr. Fromstein: Present and Self-represented

Heard: November 8, 2018

Decision and Order effective: November 8, 2018

Release of written reasons: February 25, 2019

REASONS FOR THE DECISION AND ORDER MADE NOVEMBER 8, 2018

I. OVERVIEW

- [1] This hearing is about whether the allegations that Mr. Fromstein failed to act in a manner which will maintain the good reputation of the profession and its ability to serve the public interest contrary to Rule 201.1 of the Rules of Professional (the "Rules") have been established on a balance of probabilities, amounting to professional misconduct.
- [2] Mr. Fromstein obtained his CA designation in 1975. He was a member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario and subsequently a member of the Chartered Professional Accountants of Ontario ("CPA Ontario") until his revocation for non-payment of his member dues in 2014.
- [3] During the time period from 1998 to 2010, Mr. Fromstein was involved in numerous corporations as an Officer/Director. He received notices from the Canada Revenue Agency ("CRA") in July 2010 requiring the filing of Income Tax Returns and GST Returns in relation to these corporations for several prior years. The deadline for compliance under each notice was October 29, 2010. Mr. Fromstein did not file the required tax returns by the deadline and, as a result, was charged on September 9, 2011 with failing to file the returns contrary to the Income Tax Act and the Excise Tax Act.

- [4] On July 10, 2013 Mr. Fromstein pled guilty to 21 counts of failure to file a Corporation Income Tax Return with respect to corporations for which he was an officer, director or agent, contrary to the Income Tax Act, and he pleaded guilty to 3 counts of failure to file GST returns with respect to corporations for which he was an officer, director or agent, contrary to the Excise Tax Act.
- [5] By the date on which he pled guilty to these offences, Mr. Fromstein had filed all of the required tax returns, with no tax owing for any corporation. Mr. Fromstein was fined $1000.00 for each count, amounting to $24,000.00 in total.
- [6] At the hearing, the Professional Conduct Committee ("PCC") alleged that Mr. Fromstein, in pleading guilty to and being found guilty of failure to file these tax returns, failed to act in a manner which will maintain the good reputation of the profession and its ability to serve the public interest, contrary to Rule 201.1 of the Rules of Professional Conduct.
- [7] The onus was on the PCC to show on a balance of probabilities that Mr. Fromstein's conduct breached the CPA Ontario's Rules of Professional Conduct, and constituted professional misconduct.

II. PRELIMINARY ISSUES

- [8] At the outset of the hearing, the PCC noted to the Panel that Mr. Fromstein was no longer a member of CPA Ontario. The PCC took the position that CPA Ontario continued to have jurisdiction over Mr. Fromstein by virtue of section 22 of the Chartered Professional Accountants of Ontario Act, 2017 ("Act").
- [9] The Panel agreed that it continued to have jurisdiction over Mr. Fromstein and the allegation against him. The alleged conduct occurred in 2013, during which time Mr. Fromstein was a member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario, the predecessor to CPA Ontario. Section 22 of the Act is clear that an individual remains subject to the continuing jurisdiction of CPA Ontario in respect of a discipline proceeding arising from his conduct while a member of a predecessor body, even if the individual resigned as a member or his membership was revoked.

III. ISSUES

- [10] The Panel identified the following issues arising from the allegations:
 - A. Did the evidence establish, on a balance of probabilities, the facts on which the allegations by the PCC were based?
 - B. If these facts were established on the evidence on a balance of probabilities, did those facts constitute professional misconduct?
 - C. If the facts alleged by the PCC constituted professional misconduct, what was the appropriate penalty?

IV. DECISION

- [11] The Panel found that the evidence established, on a balance of probabilities, the facts on which the allegations by the PCC were based, specifically, that Mr. Fromstein had pled guilty to violations of the Income Tax Act and Excise Tax Act for failing to file the required tax returns.

[12] The Panel did not find that those facts constituted professional misconduct.

V. REASONS FOR THE DECISION

Findings regarding Conduct of Mr. Fromstein

[13] The Panel considered the evidence of Mr. Fromstein's guilty pleas to violations of the Income Tax Act and the Excise Tax Act. The evidence consisted of the materials included by the PCC in the Document Brief (Exhibit 1), which comprised certified copies of the Income Tax Act and Excise Tax Act convictions, a certified transcript of the guilty plea proceedings, and an affidavit of the investigator. The Panel admitted this evidence pursuant to the Rules of Practice and Procedure relating to the admissibility of evidence from a former proceeding. Mr. Fromstein did not contest this evidence, and admitted that he had pled guilty to these offences.

[14] The PCC did not lead additional evidence beyond the evidence of the guilty pleas themselves. In particular, the PCC did not lead evidence which addressed the motivation of Mr. Fromstein for failing to file the tax returns, or which addressed whether the failure to file the tax returns involved dishonesty on the part of Mr. Fromstein.

[15] Mr. Fromstein testified on his own behalf. He explained his decision to not file the tax returns required by CRA. He testified that he faced an issue as to whether the tax liabilities were properly classified as personal or corporate. He testified that the outcome of the personal tax assessments would determine the amount that should be reported in the corporations' tax returns, on the basis that the CRA would not assess the same income to both him personally and to a corporation. He testified that once the issue of personal tax liability had been resolved, he filed all of the corporate tax returns, each with no tax owing, and that these returns were deemed acceptable by the CRA. He further testified, in response to a question, that if he had filed the tax returns before this issue had been resolved, and the tax returns had been filed incorrectly, he could have been accused of making a false statement on a tax return.

[16] The Panel found Mr. Fromstein's testimony to be credible. Counsel for the PCC probed Mr. Fromstein's testimony but did not attack or undermine his credibility.

Findings regarding Professional Misconduct

Applicable Rules of Professional Conduct

[17] The determination of whether Mr. Fromstein's guilty pleas to the violations of the tax legislation amounted to professional misconduct requires consideration of two separate but related Rules of Professional Conduct.

[18] The version of Rule 201.1 of the Rules of Professional Conduct which was in effect at the time of the guilty pleas in 2013 states that a Member shall act at all times in a manner which will maintain the good reputation of the profession and its ability to serve the public interest. This Rule is free-standing and does not require reference to any other Rule of Professional Conduct. Rule 201.2 states that there is a rebuttable presumption^[1] that the Member has failed to maintain the good reputation of the profession and its ability to serve the public interest when the Member is subject to an allegation under Rule 201.1 on account of any matter referred to in Rule 102.1 (a), (d) and (e) and a certified copy of a document which provides proof of guilt in respect of such matters is filed with the discipline committee. Thus Rule 201.2 does require reference to another Rule; specifically, Rule 102.1, which addresses which activities must be reported by a Member to CPA Ontario. Rule 201.2 cross references Rule 102.1 and utilizes three subsections of Rule 102.1 to specify in which circumstances the rebuttable presumption applies.

- [19] Rule 102.1(e) is the relevant subsection in this case. It refers to a Member having been “found guilty of a violation of the provisions of any tax legislation that involves, explicitly or implicitly, dishonesty on the part of the Member...”.
- [20] What this means for Mr. Fromstein is that, if his admitted violations of the Income Tax Act and Excise Tax Act arising from his failure to file the required returns involved dishonesty (explicitly or implicitly), then he would face a rebuttable presumption that these offences constituted a failure to maintain the good reputation of the profession in violation of Rule 201.1 and hence constituted professional misconduct. The onus would then shift to Mr. Fromstein to lead evidence to rebut that presumption.
- [21] The Panel notes that the subsection applicable to Mr. Fromstein is different from the other subsections in Rule 102.1 which can trigger the rebuttable presumption. If a Member is convicted of the offences listed in Rule 102.1 (a), which include fraud, theft, forgery, etc., then the rebuttable presumption applies. If a Member is found guilty of a violation of the provisions of any securities legislation pursuant to Rule 102.1 (d), then the rebuttable presumption applies. In contrast, because Rule 102.1 (e) is limited to a finding of guilt of the violation of the provisions of any tax legislation that involves dishonesty, the rebuttable presumption applies only upon a finding of a violation of the tax legislation in question and a finding that this violation involved dishonesty, either explicitly or implicitly.

The rebuttable presumption does not apply in this case

- [22] As noted above, the Panel did not hear any evidence from the PCC that Mr. Fromstein was explicitly or implicitly dishonest in relation to his violations of the tax legislation.
- [23] It was the submission of the PCC that an intentional failure to file the tax returns over this time period necessarily involved implicit dishonesty.
- [24] The Panel does not accept this submission. The Panel accepts Mr. Fromstein’s evidence that he was honestly attempting to appropriately address the problem he was facing respecting the correct allocation of corporate and personal tax liability. Based on ^[1] While the Rules of Professional Conduct in effect in 2013 did not provide a definition of “rebuttable presumption”, this term is defined in the 2016 CPA Code of Professional Conduct as follows: “rebuttable presumption” means a presumption that will be deemed to be valid or true until adequate evidence to the contrary is produced. A presumption is rebutted when the actual facts are found to be different than the presumption assumes.

the evidence before it, the Panel does not find that Mr. Fromstein's failure to file the tax returns involved dishonesty, either explicitly or implicitly. Consequently, the rebuttable presumption that the violations of the tax legislation constituted professional misconduct does not apply in this case.

No finding of professional misconduct

- [25] It was the alternative submission of the PCC that, even without an element of dishonesty, Mr. Fromstein's intentional failure to file the tax returns contrary to the applicable tax legislation nonetheless still constitutes a failure to maintain the good reputation of the profession and its ability to serve the public interest contrary to Rule 201.1. That is, the PCC submitted that even if the rebuttable presumption of Rule 201.2 were not found to apply, the failure to file the returns still amounted to professional misconduct pursuant to Rule 201.1. The PCC submitted that the CRA and the public relies on Members of CPA Ontario to comply with the applicable tax legislation, and that an intentional violation of that legislation amounts to professional misconduct, whether the violation involved dishonesty or not.
- [26] The Panel does not accept this submission. The Panel interprets Rule 201.1 and Rule 201.2 to mean that not every violation of the Income Tax Act or the Excise Tax Act will necessarily amount to professional misconduct. A determination of whether, in any particular instance, the violation of the tax legislation does amount to professional misconduct will require a consideration of the facts of the case, including any explanations, mitigating facts or circumstances. The Panel finds that, having considered the facts of this case, including Mr. Fromstein's evidence explaining the reasons for his failure to file the tax returns, and the eventual filing of all of the returns with no tax owing, the facts in this case do not establish on a balance of probabilities that his failure to file the tax returns amounted to professional misconduct under Rule 201.1.
- [27] The Panel found that Mr. Fromstein did not commit professional misconduct in that he did not breach Rule 201.1.
